THE DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

While the great fight in this campaign seems to be for the election of the candidates for the mayoralty, and while The Herald has paid special attention to Mayor Morris' candidacy because he has been the subject of the most violent attacks, the public must not forget that there are other candidates on the Democratic ticket equally as worthy of support as is Mayor Morris. There isn't a man of them that we cannot recommend with the greatest pleasure.

Every nominee is personally clean; every one is thoroughly competent to perform the duties of the office for which he has been nominated. We believe this fact is generally conceded. One of the pleasantest features of the campaign lies in the fact that there has been no attack worthy of notice on any Democratic candidate except the nominee for the mayoralty, and his record has been one of such excellence in all respects that any attacks upon it must fall of their own weight.

For city recorder the Democrats have renominated John S. Critchlow, who has served the public so well for two years that practically all voters with whom he has come in contact officially will give him their cordial support, regardless of politics. Two years ago Mr. Critchlow was given a very complimentary total vote. His majority was only a little under 2,000, and it was less than 300 behind Mayor Morris, who ran a phenomenal race. There is no reason for believing that Mr. Critchlow will fall behind his record of two years ago.

M. F. Cunningham is the Democratic nominee for city auditor. Mr. Cunningham, during the course of his work on The Herald and as secretary of the Portland fair commission, has become known to a large proportion of the voters of the city. We need not recommend him to them for they already know him to be an honest, industrious man, who would fill the office of auditor with great ability. Personally, we would rather have him on The Herald staff than in the auditor's office, but at the same time nothing could give us greater pleasure than to see Mr. Cunningham elected by the biggest majority ever given to a candidate for a city office.

The Democratic candidate for treasurer is Joseph E. Caine, than whom there are few better known young business men. Mr. Caine's years of banking experience peculiarly fit him for the treasurer'ship. We believe he will be elected, and we know that if he is elected he will make a record of which he and his party may well be proud.

W. H. Bramel, the nominee for city attorney, has been much in the public eye during the last two years, that time having been spent in filling the office of assistant city attorney. Mr. Bramel has been uniformly successful in his conduct of the city's legal business. Only the other day he won for the city a damage suit involving some thousands of dollars, and his record throughout has been as good as any man could have made. Mr. Bramel's promotion to the city attorney'ship will be a thoroughly deserved tribute to his ability.

HOW VALUES JUMP.

If the value of a water right increases $25,000 a day, how many days will it take to make that right more valuable than all of Salt Lake City? This problem is suggested by the rapidity with which the affable, courteous and mild suburban contemporary is bidding up that Knudsen right. Yesterday the price had risen, in the editorial opinion of the contemporary aforesaid, to $150,000. Less than a week ago it was quoted by the same contemporary at $50,000, and a few days earlier at a smaller figure.

On election morning, at the present rate of increase the Knudsen right will be quoted, by our wise old contemporary, at not less than $500,000. But thank goodness, the election is not far distant. If it were a month of there wouldn't be room in four lines of our contemporary's editorial page for the figures it would use to represent the value of the right.

At the same time we can't help wondering what the Daily Suburbanite would estimate the value of the right to be if it desired to purchase it. That would make some difference; now, wouldn't it, you dear, sweet old soul? Lord love you, it would make all the difference in the world. And wasn't it Owen Wister who wrote:

"The cow is in the folding bed,
The calf is in the lake,
The horse is in the parlor,
But what difference does it make?"

THE RUSSIAN CRISIS.

The Russian emperor has acted wisely in giving Count Witte authority to formulate plans for the preservation of the empire. And the most important news that has come out of Russia for many months was the announcement from St. Petersburg, published yesterday, that Witte had been permitted to speak plainly to the czar about conditions in that storm-tossed country. Witte did speak plainly, more plainly than any of the czar's advisers has spoken.

He told his royal master that not even a republic could save Russia from anarchy. Then Witte suggested that the autocratic power must be abrogated and a ministry appointed that would be responsible to both the crown and the representatives of the nation. The emperor consented to the plan, and Witte agreed to form a ministry with himself as premier under conditions such as few men would have proposed to the czar.

They were that he be given authority to select the ministers and that they report to the czar only through him as premier. The state of the czar's mind may be partly understood from his ready acceptance of these conditions. The emperor, indeed, was willing to clutch at anything that held out a hope of salvation for the country. For himself he does not seem to care. He is quoted in the dispatches as saying that he felt like leaving all the turmoil and fleeing to Darmstadt.

Upon the shoulders of Count Witte is thus placed the gravest responsibility that has been thrust upon a man in recent times. In his hands lies the fate of the Russian empire. A single false step may wreck all of his well-laid plans, a tiny spark may fan the rebellion into a flame that will consume the nation. But if any man in Russia can be depended upon to work out a plan of salvation that man is Count Witte. He has shown himself to be resourceful, cool, courageous and able. He possesses the additional advantage of popularity with the masses, though this may be partly due to the intense hatred in which he is held by most of the autocrats. And it is not entirely certain yet that he will be permitted to have a free hand. The weak czar has manifested a little manhood, but will he be strong enough to resist the importunities of the grand dukes, who from this day will be plotting the downfall of Witte?

Certainly, though, Witte is Russia's last hope. If he is not permitted to go ahead in his own way the reg flag of anarchy will float over every palace of the czar.

WOMEN TO VOTE.

The New York Press tells of a plan that has been evolved by Miss Maud Malone and the Harlem Equal Rights League to enable the women of Greater New York to vote for candidates for city and district offices on election day this year. As the New York state constitution does not provide for suffrage for women, the votes cast by the fair sex will not affect the result. In fact, their balloting will be of the straw variety, but it will be interesting, just the same.

One polling place is to be opened for all women who desire to vote. Officers of election will be appointed and the ballots will be a fair counterpart of those that are to be cast by the men. It was not practicable to have a registration day, but in circulars that have been sent out in notices that have been posted in women's clubs, the suggestion has been made that women intending to vote send in their names and addresses.

It is difficult to see why this was necessary, however, for naturally there is no provision for punishing women who may indulge in illegal voting. If the same woman votes two or three or a dozen times she can't be sent to jail; she can't even be arrested. Nor can trouble be made for her if she registers from one place and votes from another. These little defects, though, are immaterial. The main thing is that the women of New York are to be given a chance to vote.

The purpose behind the opening of the straw polling place is to ascertain the interest New York women take in politics. If a large number of women vote the promoters of the plan will be highly elated. If the number of voters is small they will be correspondingly depressed. We do not look upon the test as a fair one. Thousands of New York women might vote if their ballots counted for anything, where only tens will vote knowing they are merely going through a form.

How many Utah women, for example, would go to a polling place just to vote a straw ballot? It is hard enough to get many of them to the polls to vote real ballots in a real election. They turned out in large numbers when the suffrage privilege was new, but now that it has become a routine matter with them they don't take so much interest. There has been no appreciable diminution in the women's vote, but it is growing harder year by year to get them out.

The Teton Peak Chronicle, published at St. Anthony, Ida., appears this week in magazine form, handsomely illustrated with half-tone engravings. It is called an industrial number, and sets forth the industries of the state, and especially of Fremont county, in a handsome manner. It is a fine number, and reflects great credit on its publishers.

A St. Louis life insurance man, in a talk the other day, announced that John A. McCall is a poor man because he has a mortgage on his home. He neglected to say, though, that the home cost $500,000. Most of us could worry along on a smaller place than that.

Mr. Thompson, when in office, spent $250,000 derived from the sale of bonds intended for water purposes, without securing an additional drop of water. We presume he ought to be elected on the theory that he couldn't possibly do worse with a million.

The czar has issued a proclamation in which he says that "God has caused our fatherland to suffer more trials and blows of fate in a sanguinary war." Still we don't think the Lord was entirely to blame.

Really, Best Beloved, we don't know what sort of chief of police George Sheets would make. We only know Sheets would like to be chief, and that Mr. Thompson, if elected, will probably appoint him.

No matter who is elected mayor, there will be a vacancy in the police department early in January next. There's one safe proposition to bet on. If you are a betting man.

Society.

Miss Daisy Savage entertained over a score of friends last evening at a card party for Miss Crete Pinkerton, whose marriage will be the big affair of next week. Hearts was the game played and hearts decorated the home throughout. Large yellow chrysanthemums were used as well in the hall and parlor, but the sitting room and dining room were strung with red hearts, and deep red chrysanthemums were used with these on the table. A centerpiece of cluny lace over deep red satin covered the table which was arranged for the supper. The guests to meet Miss Pinkerton were Mr. and Mrs. Edward Moore, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Childs, Dr. and Mrs. A. C. Wherry, Mr. and Mrs. Robert King Brown, Mr. and Mrs. John Stuart Manley, Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Crisman, Miss Bess Hall, Miss Olive Jennings, Miss Helen Buckingham, Miss Lella Stingley, Miss Agatha Berkhoff, Frank Dole, Wayne Hemphill, Dr. Combs, Roy Wyland and Richard Stingley.

The Wells family, over a hundred of them, gathered at the home of Euton Wells last evening to hold a family reunion in celebration of the twenty-first birthday of Daniel H. Wells. A literary and musical programme was rendered by the members of the family, a number of interesting features being arranged in which the small grandchildren took part. Later a supper was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Benner X. Smith have taken apartments at the Emery-Holmes, where they will be at home for the winter.

Mrs. Wither Jones, who has spent the past summer in Virginia, is expected home the last of the present month.

Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis of Chicago is in town for a few days with friends and is at the Kenyon.

Scott Woodward, who has been down from Butte for a few days, leaves today to return to his business.

Mr. and Mrs. Eldon P. Bacon of Logan spent yesterday in the city.

Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Marcy, formerly of New York, are at home at 74 P street.

The Browning section of the Ladies' Literary club will meet this afternoon with Mrs. A. H. Boxrud, to continue the study of "Cleon Karshish."

Miss Irma Watson is in the Boston Conservatory of Music.

Mrs. Windsor J. Rice and Mrs. W. P. Kiser will go to Ogden today in the interests of the charity ball to be given Nov. 9.

Mr. and Mrs. David D. Ryus of Los Angeles are in the city for a short visit with the Misses Emma and Lola Madison.

Mrs. W. H. Dunn of Bingham is in town for a short stay with friends.

Mrs. G. F. Harding of Brigham City is visiting her sister, Mrs. Virginia Snow Stephens.

Dr. and Mrs. H. N. Mayo expect to be in their new home, 173 Brigham street, by the end of next week.

Miss Lillie Booth entertained in honor of Miss Katharine Trenchard of Boise Wednesday evening.

Mrs. W. F. Selbert has moved from West Second South street, and will be at home to her friends at 327 East First South street.

Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Groshell, jr., entertained at dinner last evening in honor of Mr. George Bonnycastle, of Boise, Ida.

Miss Dunster will open her studio, November 1, at 1049 Third street, where she will be ready for classes, orders or firing. Teachers' mornings only.

Pretty Headwear

$3.95 is not much of a price to pay for headwear if the hat is desirable. Now the store offers today a limited number of pretty hats which sell right along at $6.00, or close to it. The hats, which are French Turbans and Ready-to-Wears, include clever efforts of our workroom and a portion of a fortunate New York purchase. The main thing is that the conceptions are unusually pretty. Sometimes a woman does not care to put much money into a runabout hat, and yet she is particular that it be becoming and possess a touch of style. These hats are that kind. So it may be that you can pick up just what you want...
